PRECONSENT CASE STUDY USE

To: Berkeley-Haas Case Series (BHCS); and
        The Berkeley-Haas School of Business (HAAS); and
        The Regents of the University of California (THE REGENTS)

I _____ understand that a case study tentatively titled _____ _____ (the "case study"), of which the lead author is _____ and in which I, and/or the organization with which I am affiliated, am described, is being written with my consent. On the basis of my knowledge of this case study project and on behalf of my company and/or myself personally, I understand that the purpose of this project is to produce a case study that will eventually be sold and distributed for educational purposes. The completed manuscript will be provided to me for my consent prior to publication, and I will not refuse consent to publication without first setting out to BHCS my objections to publication (if any) and engaging in a dialogue about how those objections may be overcome.

I also understand that typically, but not always, the BHCS and/or HAAS may test the use of the case study in a classroom environment and that as a result of this use, the case study may be modified, but not in a material way. I further acknowledge that BHCS, in its sole discretion, may change the case study from time to time to correct typographical and grammatical errors, rearrange exhibits, or make formatting changes, and that other changes may be made to the case study from time to time by BHCS to enhance its use.

>   A. I hereby acknowledge that the case study, once published, may be used by and at:
>   1) BHCS and HAAS, and
>   2) other educational institutions and other organizations worldwide;
>   B. I acknowledge that the copyright for the case study will be held by THE REGENTS, and >   that THE REGENTS may, in its sole discretion, distribute, sell, authorize use of the case study >   in a book or otherwise deal with the case study in whatever way it deems appropriate.
